

THE WHITE HOUSE

WASHINGTON

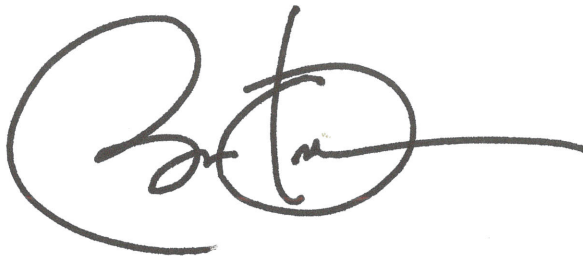

October 7, 2015

I send warm wishes as you gather for your 35th anniversary.

For centuries, engaged, active women from all walks of life have shaped our Nation—imagining a brighter future and stopping at nothing to achieve that dream. The results of their efforts can be seen throughout our country and serve as examples of the tremendous progress that can be made when we come together in common purpose.

Today, women across America help carry forward a proud tradition of empowering others and lifting up lives. Demonstrating the hard work and compassion that represent the best of our national character, these leaders and doers show what can be accomplished when we embrace our obligations to one another and to the world we share.

I hope you take pride in your efforts and dedication, and I wish you all the best.

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to be "Barack Obama", written in a cursive style. The signature is enclosed within a large, loopy circle that starts on the left and ends on the right with a long horizontal stroke.